10-Year Research Strategy for Pulse Crops
The 10-Year Research Strategy report will be used to set an agenda for global discussion and mobilize champions to advocate for accelerated pulse research investments. In September, interviews were held with thirty-three researchers working across many different scientific disciplines, geographic areas, and pulse crop types. In October, a write-shop was held as part of the Second International Legume Society conference in Troia, Portugal. In early November, a draft version of the 10-Year Research Strategy will be distributed to a broad set of pulse research stakeholders to invite their insights. 2016 African Green Revolution Forum

A special session on pulses and trade was held as part of the International Year of Pulses at the 2016 African Green Revolution Forum (AGRF) on September 7th to the 9th in Nairobi. The event brought together more than 1,500 stakeholders in the agricultural sector to develop concrete action plans for moving the continent's agriculture forward.

At this year's event, the theme was "Seize the moment: Africa Rising through Agricultural Transformation". The event aimed to advance the commitments made at the SDGs Summit and the Malabo Heads of State Summit.

Hosted by H.E. President Uhuru Kenyatta, the event was attended by several Africa Heads of State, Ministers, business leaders, thought leaders, senior donor representatives, and other important delegates.

IYP Call to Action

Pulses to play an important role for the environment and our health, the global community must come together and sustain the positive momentum achieved during the 2016 UN International Year of Pulses (IYP). Pulse production and consumption must continue to grow, and market access to facilitate trade must continue to be supported.

The IYP Call to Action offers a list of ways that you can help support more pulses getting on our plates now and in the future. This list includes;

1. Promote the production and consumption of pulses as part of national food security policies.
2. Continue to maintain the INFOODS database created for pulses and fill in any remaining gaps.
3. Support agri-food entrepreneurs to use pulses as ingredients in food products.
4. Encourage higher pulse consumption by changing dietary patterns and consumer preferences.
5. Continue to host a section for pulses on the FAO website.

6. Re-implement a pulse programme as a part of FAO's regular programme of work.
7. FAO should collect and analyse more robust pulse statistics.
8. Enable equitable trade in pulses that benefits both producers and consumers.
9. Instruct the Codex Alimentarius to establish and synchronise global standards for pulses, especially MRLs.
10. Close the gap on pulse crop productivity.
11. Take up the 10-Year Pulse Research Strategy.
12. Conduct a Sustainability Project to understand pulses' role in sustainable food systems.

Finally, on November 13th, United Nations Association of Australia SA Division is hosting an annual dinner with an IYP theme. Six well known Adelaide Chefs will be creating dishes all using Australian pulses!

Canada National Committee

In recognition of World Food Day, the Canadian IYP Committee held an event on October 14 in Toronto for Canadian media, bloggers, and consumer influencers to explore the contribution that pulses can make to food security, sustainability and the health of Canadians. The event was hosted by Chef Michael Smith of Food Network Canada, who is also Canada's Celebrity IYP Ambassador. Speakers included experts in the areas of health, nutrition, food security and environmental sustainability. A video highlighting the outcomes of IYP in Canada was also screened at the event, and can be viewed here.

The event generated coverage by CTV National News and Breakfast Television Toronto. These news stories reached a combined audience of over 1 million Canadians.

India National Committee

A Two Day National Seminar on "Pulses-2016: Innovative Approaches for Sustainability in Production and Promotion of Utilization" was held on October 21st and 22nd. It was organized by Research & Innovative Programmes Cell, University College for Women in Koti, Hyderabad. This was the third event hosted by the College to support the International Year of Pulses!

Singapore National Committee

A high tea, hosted by International Enterprise Singapore for the Singapore Pulses Federation Limited, was held on 2nd Nov at the IE headquarters. It provided a fantastic opportunity to show local pulses businesses to interact and understand how IE will be able to support the federations and the business interests of local SME's. IE Singapore is the government agency promoting international trade and partnering Singapore companies who are going global.

A CSR program has been developed to help donate pulses to the food bank with the objective to reach as many people as possible and give necessary proteins to underprivileged people.

Singapore Pulses Federation Limited is the official Lunch Sponsor for the Gafta Trade and Trends Forum on November 17th in Singapore. Mr Vishal Vijay will
